HE IDENTIFIED HIMSELF.

How Senator Cullom Worked His Way Senator Cullom met a newspaper man here to-day, writes a Washington correspendent, who recalled to his mind a curious incident of the National convention of 1850, in which both took part. Cullom was then Governor of Illineis, and the news paper man was a keeper of one of the inner doors at the convention. When they met the newspaper man remarked: "Senator, you may not remember it, but The installation of the newly elected "How is that?" asked the Senator. "Do you remember the young man that

The Governor took the matter good naturedly, and assured the door-keeper that he really was Sheiby Cullom. "There's a lot of fellows that come here with just such stories as that every day," said the door-keeper. "If you're Governor Cullom you ought to have a ticket." After some arguing, however, the door-keeper said: "Fil tell you what Fil do: You come inside and I'll tell you mighty quick whether you're a fraud or not. The Governor said all right, and followed the young man to the platform. When they were where they could get a good look at the people sitting there the door-keeper Now do you see any body you know!" Before the Governor had time to pick out any one Bob Ingersoll saw him and called "Hev. Shelby, come over here."

"'It's all right, Governor," said the door keeper, "and I'm sorry I made you any trouble, but you'll admit that I did the square thing.

"Yes, young man, you did, and I owe you a debt," said the Governor, and the incdept ended until to-day.
